

had information from the President as to how imminent a break with Germany might be. A number were planning to leave the city, but as a result of the President's speech yesterday did not wish to go if trouble threatened. Following their conference with the President, all declined to express themselves as beyond saying they still were hoping for the best.

Among Senators who saw the President was Hastings of Wisconsin, who told the Executive he believed the people back in the country are for avoiding war as far as possible, but that they feel this Government has about gone to the limit of patience.

BRITISH TRENCHES LOST TO GERMANS, BERLIN CLAIMS

Positions Taken on a 600 Metre Front in the Ypres Section, Says War Office.

BERLIN. April 20.—(via London) British trenches for a distance of 600 meters between Langemarck and Ypres, Belgium, have been occupied by German troops, according to the official statement given out at the army headquarters to-day.

The text of the official statement issued at the German Army Headquarters says:

"In the Ypres salient German patrols succeeded at several points in penetrating the English trenches. In one instance on the high road between Langemarck and Ypres they occupied about 600 meters of the enemy's position and firmly maintained them against several hand grenade attacks. At this point and near Welle and south of Ypres the number of prisoners taken amounted to one officer and 100 men. We also captured two machine guns."

One of Prussia's most quantity of men reported by the enemy last night against our trenches were spread into the rear lines of the French trenches.

In the Meuse sector the enemy directed a heavy artillery fire against the positions which we had captured from him on the eastern bank of the river.

In the cathedral Woods's preparatory artillery fire of the morning descended toward evening into a strong attack. In a salient corner the attack reached into our trenches. Otherwise it was repelled with heavy, smoky bombs from the French. A few prisoners also were taken.

To the Welle plain and on the left southwest of Verdun an artillery battle was continuing with the greatest interest to all sides, but there has been no definitely decided

FRENCH CAPTURE GERMAN POSITION IN VAUX REGION

Violent Attack Ends in Taking of 200 Prisoners and Much Booty.

PARIS, April 20.—French troops captured a well fortified German position in a violent attack last night northwest of Vaux, the War Office announced this afternoon, taking 200 prisoners and much booty.

The French, assuming the offensive, took parts of several German trenches and occupied a redoubt.

Otherwise there was no important fighting around Verdun last night. On the west bank of the Meuse there was reciprocal bombardment.

In the Argonne a mine struggle resulted to the advantage of the French.

The text of the statement follows: "In the Argonne, at Hante Chevauchoe, there has been some mining work which resulted to our advantage. We caused the explosion of small mines which destroyed some sulfurous works of the enemy.

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war," said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"

said the Manchester Guardian. "but we do exult in the prospect of a victory for the ideals of law and humanity. Whether Germany yields or not this victory is sensibly nearer."

The Globe declares that the United States is probably more useful to the allies under present conditions than if she entered the war.

"We don't exult over the prospect of America's entrance into our war,"